The sport began with a six furlong dash.
A very poor lot of skates were entered. It was the worst race of the scason, and public and bookies fought shy of it.
Kingsclere was the lavorite and he simply made an exhibition of his field, opening up a gap of six lengths on the far turn and public to a waik in the stretch. Lady Eitham filly was second choice, but Montella, a 12 to 1 shot, nipped her out of the place.
Eleanor opened havorite for the second race, and the talent played her heavity.

Tostmaster was neglected until her price went to 2 to 1, and then commissioners went down the line offering $100 bills to the bookies.

At 425 Bicks street, Brooklya, where Creamer lived with his sister, it was said he had not been home since the previous Saturday night. Chief Inspector Byrnes's detectives finally learned that Creamer bud presented a check for $6,000 at the Hanover Bank March 5, and had brought William E. Carpenter, an old employee of Dix & Phyte. to vouch for him. Curpenter was arrested, and he confessed that Creamer had planned and carried out a scheme to rob his employ-

JOCKEY TAYLOR BADLY BRUISED

Talent at Guttenburg Dazzled by Battle Cry and Fitzroy.

The most remarkable thing about racing at Guttenburg yesterday was the time in which the races were run. The six-furlong race which Toano won was covered in 1.1514, and Ballarat ran five furlougs in 1.0216, going the first quarter in less than 24 seconds. The mile and a half was run in 2.40% by Fencion, whose performance is all the more meritcrious when it is considered that he carried 117 pounds. The track has fooled the talent badly. It is covered with a slimy mixture of mud and water, but it is the hard bottom that makes the horses get a good footing and run in such last time. The best race of the day was the fourth, in which Tohno, Sainterer, Sainsbury and Derango met. Morris, who rode Sainterer, has been criticized by a writer for allowing Toano to get so far away from him in the first hair mile. Any one who will think a trifle will remember that Saunterer, though a fair beginner, cannot live who Toano in a quarter-mile dash. When the flag fell berange was underfull sait two tengths in front. Toano immediately hustled after him, and the pace was so hot that Saunterer was clearly outrun. The fast pace told on the leaders, and saunterer began to catch up in the far turn. In the stretch he was catching Toano at every jump, the latter only winning by a head. To Mr. M. P. Dwyer the finish must have been exciting, cold-blooded gambler as he is. He had a plunge bet down on Toano, and at one time it looked as though his $4.000 would be left in the bookies cash-boxes. The best race of the day was the fourth, in
